transform capitalism into a system that is more inclusive, sustainable and just. Dr. Rajiv J. Shah, president of the Rockefeller Foundation, states that capitalism is failing and the tools we are relying on to fix it—corporate social responsibility, divestment, impact investing, and government control—are only making things worse. Chevron boasts about the 50 million per year it spends on renewable energy, whilst it spends 200 times that on oil exploration. Goldman Sachs touts its 10,000 women initiative, but its board ranks 358th out of the Fortune 500 for gender diversity, and women earn 55% less than men do on average. By focusing on corporations rather than people, we've put our faith in empty trends and brand-focused window dressing. Why should those responsible for our current crisis be trusted to fix it? In Accountable, authors Michael O'Leary and Warren Valdmanis offer a blueprint for everyone to take responsibility for using their economic power as consumers, as investors, as employees, and as voters to trigger a fundamental shift away from an economy that is unethical, unfair, and destructive to our environment and institutions. Their investigation cuts through the tired dogma of current economic thinking to reveal a hopeful truth: if we can make our corporations accountable to a deeper purpose, we can make capitalism both prosperous and good. Trenchant and gripping, this is an indispensable guide and call to action for citizens to take control of our economic power and hold corporations to a higher standard.

Agribusiness offers a unique introduction to the business of agriculture. What is agribusiness, why it matters, what the role of technology is, how trade fits into the picture, what its key risks are, who is lending and investing, and why, and what returns they are getting—it is both practical in orientation, focusing on the role of managers in the industry as well as that of lenders and investors, and international in scope, drawing on case studies and interviews with key figures all over the world. The text ranges across various agricultural commodities to stress that there is no one-size-fits-all solution and successful management, lending, or investment in agribusiness requires understanding specifics. Readers are introduced to the economics of the supply and demand of food, the role of agricultural trade, agricultural marketing, and farm management, along with key business aspects including main drivers of agribusiness value, principal risks of agribusinesses, agribusiness as an investment class, and agribusiness lending. Why, who, and how—this engaging textbook offers a complete guide to the international business of agriculture, which is ideal for all students, scholars, and practitioners. A selection of resources is also available to supplement this text, and instructors will find powerpoint slides, discussion questions, case studies, and further teaching materials available to them.

This detailed study of the Mesolithic and Neolithic in Britain and Ireland examines evidence related to changes in social behaviour. Martin King discusses economic and subsistence data, burial practices, mobility, social order, construction, land clearance, and the deposition of artefacts, interpreting this material evidence in social terms.

This book explores the addictive techniques used in advertisements for ultra-processed foods, which promise consequence-free eating to consumers while at the same time encouraging overconsumption of unhealthy food. Debbie Danowski presents an analysis of promotional techniques in the context of food addiction characteristics and behaviors through an exploration of the themes used in this type of advertising. These thematic messages include using food to rebel to play to relax to achieve happiness to replace exercise to achieve good health to increase intelligence to show love to bond with others and to create environmental change ultimately danowski argues that these competing and contradictory messages have had long term negative ramifications for american habits of consumption both literally and figuratively scholars of communication advertising media studies and food studies will find this book particularly useful for more information check out this conversation between the author and susan branscome host of food addiction the problem and the solution
