no blacks no irish no dogs the untold history of racism in britain there are moments in history when cruelty is displayed not with violence but with ink and paper no blacks no irish no dogs wasn't just a sign in a window it was a message a public declaration that some people were simply not welcome that message wasn't hidden it was advertised it wasn't isolated it was widespread this book is about that message where it came from how it was justified and what it did to the people it targeted after world war ii britain needed help rebuilding so it turned to the very people it once ruled over caribbean irish african and south asian men and women who believed in the promise of the mother country they arrived in search of opportunity belonging and dignity instead they were met with closed doors suspicion and systemic exclusion we often hear britain described as a tolerant nation but behind that image is a history of subtle and not so subtle racism of discriminatory housing laws hostile media segregated schools and over policed neighbourhoods unlike the overt brutality of racism in other countries british racism was quiet bureaucratic and deeply embedded this book tells the untold stories of the people who lived through that era it sheds light on the everyday discrimination that shaped lives while also highlighting the strength resistance and resilience of communities who refused to disappear to understand britain today we must reckon with the ghosts of the signs we no longer see but whose legacy still lingers this book is for the voices once silenced it is for the stories never taught in school it is for the generations who deserve to know the full truth brian phokeerdoss 2025 austerity and irish women s writing and culture 1980 2020 focuses on the under represented relationship between austerity and irish women s writing across the last four decades taking a wide focus across cultural mediums this collection of essays from leading scholars in irish studies considers how economic policies impacted on and are represented in irish women s writing during critical junctures in recent irish history through an investigation of cultural production north and south of the border this collection analyses women s writing using a multimedial approach through four distinct lenses austerity feminism and conflict arts and austerity race and austerity and spaces of austerity this collection asks two questions what sort of cultural output does austerity produce and if the effects of austerity are gendered then what are the gender specific responses to financial insecurity both national and domestic by investigating how austerity is treated in women s writing and culture from 1980 to 2020 this collection provides a much needed analysis of the gendered experience of economic crisis and specifically of ireland s consistent relationship with cycles of boom and bust thirteen chapters which focus on fiction drama poetry women s life writing and women s cultural contributions examine these questions this volume takes the reader on a journey across decades and forms as a means of interrogating the growth of the economic divide between the rich and the poor since the 1980s through the voices of irish women this book is a ground breaking exploration of everyday life as experienced through the lens of black british cultural history and creative practice through a multiplicity of voices and writing styles the structure of black everyday lives material culture and narrative examines life through a personal study of the family home room by room object by object as a portal through which to examine the intricacies and nuances of daily considerations of african heritage people living in britain in the modern era post 1950 using small anthropology methodology this book foregrounds the experiences of black british lives by bringing the threads of history and culture into the relevancy of the present day and demonstrates how the personal sphere directly links to wider public and political concerns this book will be of interest to a wide range of disciplines including black studies anthropology cultural studies history visual culture photography media communication sociology community development art and design and by any course that studies ethnographic methodologies material culture migration everyday life and british society available in paperback for the first time his book demonstrates how the personal became political in post war britain and argues that attention to gay activism can help us to fundamentally rethink the nature of post war politics while the left were fighting among themselves and the reformists were struggling with the limits of law reform gay men started organising for themselves first individually within existing organisations and later rejecting formal political structures altogether culture performance and identity took over from economics and class struggle as gay men worked to change the world through the politics of sexuality throughout the post war years the new cult of the teenager in the 1950s and the counter culture of the 1960s gay liberation feminism the punk movement and the miners strike of 1984 all helped to build a politics of identity there is an assumption among many of today's politicians that young people are apathetic and disengaged this book argues that these politicians are looking in the wrong place people now feel that they can impact the world through the way in which they live shop have sex and organise their private lives robinson shows that gay men and their politics have been central to this change in the post war world is contemporary black british gospel music a coloniality what theological message is really conveyed in these songs in this book robert beckford shows how the black british contemporary gospel music tradition is in crisis because its songs continue to be informed by colonial christian ideas about god beckford explores the failure of both african and african caribbean heritage churches to decolonise their faith especially the doctrine of god biblical interpretation and black ontology this predicament has left song leaders musicians and songwriters with a reservoir of ideas that aim to disavow engagement with the social historical world black biblical interpretation and the necessity of loving blackness this book is decolonisation through praxis reflecting on the conceptual social justice album the jamaican bible remix 2017 as a communicative resource beckford shows how to develop production tools to inscribe decolonial theological thought onto black british music's the outcome of this process is the creation of a decolonial contemporary gospel music genre the impact of the album is demonstrated through case studies in national and international contexts based on true events the journey crosses three decades part one covering a time span of 17 years after the sudden disappearance of her sister jacqueline determines in her heart to find her she draws out a piece of paper from inside her bag and allows her pen to dance across the page making music with every stroke but this was so not the sound of music as we know it dear dad she begins and after many words she ends with the full weight of the truth i love you but i want to be with my sister join her as she recalls true experiences of her journey this is her story in south london an unlikely gang of kidnapers hatch a plot nick an ex bouncer dex a charismatic sociopath and lisa a motor mouth junkie femme fatale their prey is a powerful local businessman with an obsession for the poet Rilke, thing is each kidnapper has a very different agenda which means it's only a matter of time before the joking stops and the ever-threatening violence begins. Rilke on Black is an eerie, crooked tale of sex obsession and betrayal. Ken Bruen's dark contemporary thriller matches a razor-sharp vernacular with a country music soundtrack to create a truly intoxicating and original mix.

includes articles on issues of worldwide anthropological interest.
