This book tells the story of the Hakka Chinese in Sarawak, Malaysia, who were targeted as communists or communist sympathizers because of their Chinese ethnicity. In the 1960s and 1970s, thousands of these rural Hakkas were relocated into new villages surrounded by barbed wire or detained at correction centres where incarcerated people were understood to be sacrificial gifts to the war on communism and to the rule of Malaysia's judicial administrative regime. The Hakkas of Sarawak look at how these incarcerated people struggled for survival and dealt with their defeat over the course of a generation using methodologies of narrative theory and exchange theory. Kee Howe Yong provides a powerful account of the ongoing legacies of Cold War oppression and its impact on the lives of people who were victimized by these policies.

There is great interest in the Pacific Century and what its implications for the future will be. The rapid economic growth of East Asia was already setting the region apart from the rest of the world by the 1970s. By the 1980s, the trend was seen to have spread southward to Thailand, Malaysia, and Indonesia, while China's provinces had also become integral to the regional economic boom. In this exciting new study, many of the ideas and expectations associated with the Pacific Century are placed under critical scrutiny. The book includes studies of particular countries such as China, Japan, South Korea, Vietnam, Indonesia, and Malaysia. There is analysis of economic and political trends in the region, the reasons behind its rise, and its importance on a global scale. The rise of East Asia represents an historic turning point with immense significance world-wide. This book will be of interest to anyone concerned about the new approaches to and the debate about the rise of East Asia and the coming of the Pacific Century.
